SEE WISCONSIN FIRST

(By F. A. Cannon, Executive Secretary.) Good Roads Association of Wisconsin

This is the first of a series of articles devoted to a description of the scenic spots of Wisconsin, and the highways over which they can be reached.

The State Parks

Until the advent of the automobile, much of the scenic beauty of Wisconsin "was born to bluish-ness." The railroads touched but few of the beautiful spots and no one would find the railroad line except the fishermen.

The automobile, however, has made the state a playground and people may now visit our beautiful spots much as they drove in their local park in the years gone by. However, until the last three years most of us were barred from touring by the conditions of many of our highways and through the lack of any system of highway marking.

The patrol maintenance on the State Trunk Highway system has largely solved the question of highway conditions, except possibly in the sand belt, and in a few other areas where unusual conditions exist. As a whole, one may travel over the State Trunk Highway system without meeting any real road horrors and with ease and comfort. You may travel over the system with a surety that you will not get lost, for our road marking is well nigh perfect.

Before going into any detailed description of the beauties of Wisconsin and the roads which open up these by the state of Minnesota. The river flows through a narrow gorge in the traprock which at one point rises to a height of more than 200 feet. The scenery is massive and inspiring.

Devils Lake Park down in the heart of Wisconsin in Sauk County, is a few miles from Baraboo, and is a favorite playground and of interest to students of geology. It contains about 1040 acres, a strange geological formation, with massive bluffs of quartzite forming its shore line.

Nelson-Dewey Park in the extreme south western part of the state in Grant County probably offers the most rugged scenery of any of the State Parks. It lies in the angle formed by the confluence of the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers standing on a series of bold bluffs, the military road terminating on the highest point of the park 500 feet above the Mississippi River.

A recent addition to the state park system, and a real acquisition, is Trempleau Mountain, about 20 miles north of La Crosse, a 700 acre tract overlooking the river, and scenically and historically one of the most interesting spots on the upper Mississippi—a commanding and picturesque peak projecting into the Mississippi river, which has been named Perrot Park in honor of Nicholas Perrot, the French explorer, who visited this spot in 1685.

Another recent acquisition is what is known as Patterson Park, the gift of James Martin Patterson, Superior. This includes a striking bit of Wisconsin scenery, the falls of the Black beauties, it is well in the first article to tell what the state of Wisconsin herself has done to conserve these beauties for her people and the great playgrounds she has laid out in the way of State Parks. It is astonishing the lack of knowledge among the people of the state regarding these State Parks.

Wisconsin now has seven State Parks, mainly chosen as was the system of National Parks, to conserve for all time to the public certain features of unusual scenic beauty, lakes, or forests for playgrounds for the present and the future generations. There are over 12,000 acres in these parks. This does not take into consideration 200,000 acres of the old forest reserve land in Vilas, Oneida, Iron and Forest counties.

The State Parks are dedicated to the use of the people of Wisconsin. The people should use them. They are easily reached by motor vehicles and one in every ten people in Wisconsin owns an automobile. Visit the State Parks this year and enjoy one of Wisconsin's greatest assets.

You may camp in these state parks. If you want a more permanent habitation you have the privilege of leasing from the state any one of over 600 islands scattered throughout the lakes of upper Wisconsin. The rental is from $10 a year upward. Leases are drawn for five years, with first privilege of renewal in five years. In addition to that you can lease lake frontage in the forest reserve of upper Wisconsin on the same terms. People are beginning to take advantage of this opportunity and erecting shacks or temporary homes on the lakes in the upper part of the state.

No attempt will be made to describe the State Parks in this article. This will be covered in the subsequent articles. The parks are as follows:

Peninsular Park, the largest of the state parks, is located in Door County, the thumb of land jutting out from Green Bay, and contains almost 4,000 acres, of which 2,500 is in timber. It is pre-eminently the forest park of the group, and is attracting a large number of tourists, especially motorists. The roads in the park are excellent, and the scenery is wonderfully beautiful with its bold headlands of solid rock arising from the lake.

Interstate Park is located in the northwestern part of the state on the boundary line between Wisconsin and Minnesota, and was planned to preserve the beauty of the Delta of the St. Croix River, which are more massive than the delta of the Wisconsin. The park contains 720 acres, of which 550 are owned by the state of Wisconsin, and 150 consin scenery, the falls of the Black river, south of the city of Superior. It is the highest waterfall in Wisconsin, a 160 foot cascade tumbling down a rock formation.

Brule Park, along the Brule river in Douglas county, is a favorite resort of trout fishermen. The scenery is not unusual in character, but it has all the natural wildness of this section of upper Wisconsin.

While it is not a state park, the old forest reserve area in Vilas, Oneida, Iron and Forest counties, offers all the advantages of a state park, being open to the public on practically the same conditions. It lies in the heart of the lake region in upper Wisconsin, the whole section being interlaced with lakes, upon which are many beautiful spots for camping grounds and summer shacks. While the movement to make this a forest reserve was killed some years ago, steps should be taken by the state of Wisconsin to see that the lake frontage in this region shall never be sold, but shall be preserved forever for the enjoyment of the people of Wisconsin.

WANTED GRAIN HARVEST STARTS IN FEW WEEKS

The favorable weather has been a help to the winter wheat and rye crops. The rye started to head out several days ago, and the wheat is also commencing to mature. Some fields are three or four feet high and will soon be ripening. Harvesting of the winter crops is expected within three or four weeks. Summer grains have been set back a little by the dry weather, but are said to be improving since the recent rains.

COAL IS MOVING TO PAPERMILL YARDS

Otto Nelson, tender at the Lake street draw bridge, says that quite a little coal is being distributed among the mills of the Fox river valley notwithstanding the reported shortage at lake ports. All the tugs, boats and barges are in service and pass through the government canal almost daily. No great amount of coal is delivered at any one mill. Pleasure boats, however, are scarce and it is only occasionally that one passes through the canal.

COMPASS LOANED IN WAR IS RETURNED TO OWNER

Perhaps no souvenir of the war will be more cherished than a compass received through the mail several days ago by L. Hugo Keller, who was a lieutenant in the Rainbow Division. An interesting story has woven itself about the compass.

The instrument was loaned by Mr. Keller during the fighting at Chateau Thierry to Sergt. Daniel Michelson, an Idaho man. Michelson was about to go into battle and asked the use of the instrument, expecting to return it when he came back. The soldier was wounded during the attack and died as he was taken to the first aid station.

Mr. Keller thought no more about the compass until it arrived through the mail from the War Department, Washington, D. C. He had scratched his name on the back of the instrument after it had been issued to him by the quartermaster. When taken from the fallen soldier, the ownership was noted and it was eventually returned to the Appleton lieutenant.

AUTO DRIVERS FACE DEATH ON CROSSING

A car loaded with county school graduates, returning from the commencement exercises at Watervly rolled over in the ditch opposite the Mose farm, just south of the old Fourth ward baseball grounds, Thursday afternoon. It was reported at the scene of the accident that the car belonged to a Mr. Lillge of Twelve Corners and that among the passengers were Laura Doolke, Gertrude Mueller and Mildred Schneider. One of the girls was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital, where it was found that her injuries were not serious and she was permitted to return home. The automobile was so badly wrecked that it had to be taken to a local garage. The accident was due to the driver getting too close to the embankment in turning out for another auto.

Geneva. Calling upon the women of the world to work for consummation of a strong alliance of nations, the international suffrage congress held its final session here today.

A resolution was adopted placing the congress on record as favoring an agreement between the powerful countries to maintain peace.

"The only hope of assuring the future peace of the world lies in a strong league of nations," the resolution said.

Another resolution lauded the ability and achievements of Carrie Chapman Catt, who was unanimously re-elected president of the International Suffrage Alliance.

DOUG CUTS UP—MARY HOLDS HER BREATH

New York.—Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks—sometimes known as Mary Pickford—stamped her little foot and said "No!" emphatically, when her hubby wanted to hang by his fingers from the edge of the Ritz-Carlton roof. So Doug merely did a hand stand on the edge of the roof, while Mary held her breath. Fifth avenue was just a few hundred feet away—straight down—and St. Patrick's cathedral loomed up in the distance.

AUTO LOADED WITH YOUNG PEOPLE IS OVERTURNED

Several automobile accidents have been narrowly averted at College avenue railroad crossing within the last few days. Drivers in turning from Richmond street down College avenue are becoming especially reckless, making the turn at full speed and apparently paying no attention to whether or not a train is approaching. The flagman says he is doing his best to prevent fatalities, but that drivers appear to be indifferent about the chances they are taking.

STATE PREPARING TO COLLECT EXTRA TAX ON ALL DOGS

CITY AND VILLAGE CLERKS ARE INSTRUCTED TO COLLECT TAXES AFTER JULY FIRST

The new dog tax passed by the last legislature and which goes into effect Thursday, July 1, requires all dog owners of the county to make application by letter or in person to their respective city, town or village clerk for a license and pay a fee of $3 plus 15 cents for each male dog and $5 plus 15 cents for each female dog.

Herman J. Kamps, county clerk, has just received a letter from C. P. Norgard, commissioner of the state department of agriculture at Madison in which the writer stated that the various city, town and village clerks were instructed to write to the county clerk informing him of the supplies needed and stating the number of tags desired for licensing dogs.

The supplies needed are application blanks, license blanks, registry book, monthly reports and tags. The clerk's duties in each city, town and village are:

MORRIS TELLS HOW REBEL WAS CAPTURED

WATER WORKS SECRETARY RECALLS CAPTURE OF AGUINALDO, FILIPINO REBEL CHIEF

The recent publication in the Chicago Tribune of a photograph of Carmen Aguinaldo, daughter of the once famous Filipino rebel of Spanish-American war times, brought an interesting retrospect to Fred Morris, who was a sergeant in the 4th Regular Cavalry at that time.

The Spaniards were driven out of control in 1899 and Aguinaldo, who opposed American intervention, at once started an insurrection among the natives in the Philippine Islands. He was driven from place to place with his men by the American troops and it was through circumstances surrounding the birth of his daughter that he was captured. In the winter of 1901, Aguinaldo was obliged to leave his wife behind when a daughter was born. The company to which Mr. Morris belonged left its only surgeon to care for her.

The rebel leader was located through finding his wife and the rebellion ended. Aguinaldo is now serving as a high officer in the Filipino government. The daughter is a student at the University of Illinois and is quite popular.

ADOPTED KIDDIES HAVE ROOF GARDEN WITH LAKE

New York.—At one time Dorothy and Margery were content to play in an ordinary backyard. First Margery, the older of the sisters, was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Browning, but she was so lonely for Dorothy that Mr. and Mrs. Browning prevailed upon the parents of the girls to permit Dorothy to join her sister. Both have been legally adopted, and their playground is a roof garden above the palatial Browning home. It includes a miniature lake, with real fish, pond lilies and a dainty boat.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS PLANNING BIG PICNIC

PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION WILL ATTEND BLACK CREEK MEETING WEDNESDAY.

Holstein breeders and their families from the entire Fox river valley will gather at the George E. Sassman farm, near Black Creek, Wednesday, for the annual picnic of the Fox River Valley Holstein Breeders' association. It is planned to make it one of the biggest ever held, with its main purpose to push the raising of the "black and white" cattle in this section of the state.

The farmers are to come in the morning with their lunch baskets and stay all day. Among the amusements planned is a tug-of-war between Black Creek and any other four towns of the county. A band will be on hand to furnish music and there will be plenty of refreshments.

A feature of the outing will be the sale of 14 selected sires ranging from five months to one year old. They are selected from Outagamie county herds and will be auctioned by Julius H. Dennhardt, Neenah.

D. D. Atkins, Flint, Mich., president of the National Holstein Breeders' association, is to be present and will probably give an address. R. J. Schaefer is president of the valley organization and E. O. Mueller is secretary.

APPLETON BANKERS TO ATTEND STATE OUTING

APPLETON BANKERS TO (2) Several Appleton bankers plan to attend the summer outing of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, which is to be held at North Lake, Waukesha county, June 16 and 17. About 600 reservations have been sent in from Badger bankers already.

The bankers are to be housed at various hotels and cottages located on the chain of lakes near Waukesha and Oconomowoc. Meetings are to be held at North Lake. Entertainment is to be provided by the Great Lakes navy band.

Delegates interested in farming and pure bred stock promotion will remain over for another day to attend the exposition under the auspices of the North Lake Farm Management club. Some of Wisconsin's best cattle are to be on exhibition and educational lectures are to be given by prominent breeders and bank officials.

Got the Wrong Tube After a busy day of golfing and an evening of automobiling, Jane's skin was irritated from the combined effects of sun and wind, so she liberally "cold-creamed" her face and hands and settled herself for a good night's rest. In a few minutes her face began to feel stiff and drawn. "At last," she thought, "the expected has happened. I have paralysis." Her nervousness increased when her fingers became unmanageable and her skin began to crack and snap. She hastily turned on the light and found her face alarmingly waxy and shiny. What could be the cause? Finally she rushed to the tube of cold cream. It was labeled "Library Paste"—Youth's Companion.

MORE LUMBER MILLS ARE RESUMING WORK

STRIKING TIMBERMEN RETURNING TO WORK IN MANY PLACES—MAYORS TAKING A HAND.

Work has been resumed at the G. W. Jones Lumber company saw mill at Wabeno, according to a statement issued by O. T. Swan, Oshkosh, secretary of the Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers association. He states that conditions are improving continually and that the only places now having trouble are Marinette, Rhinelander and Menominee, Mich. These are important timber centers and a hard struggle is in progress to reach a settlement.

Mr. Swan states that the mayors of Marinette and Menominee are trying to bring employers and employees together by urging the former to allow a basic eight-hour day with time and a half for overtime. The effort has failed thus far.

The car shortage is said to be a serious matter just now. Orders for 1,700 cars in the last ten days brought only 488, according to a survey made by the Hemlock association office. It will require at least 2,500 cars to take care of the orders now on the books of the various mills. Because of the car shortage a number of cancellations of orders have resulted, Mr. Swan said.

Direct losses due to strikes in 1919 are placed at $725,000,000 to labor in wages, and $1,250,000,000 in industry.

$12,612 DONATED TO NEAR EAST RELIEF

OUTAGAMIE COUNTY MAKES GOOD SHOWING IN CAMPAIGN TO RELIEVE ARMENIAN SUFFERING

Outagamie county raised well over $12,000 for Near East Relief so far this year, according to a report issued by Dr. H. E. Peabody, county chairman. Pledges and cash receipts are still being reported.

Records of the state organization at Milwaukee show that total cash received from this county amounts to $11,136.81. Unpaid pledges from Appleton, Kaukauna and other places amount to $1,457.50, making a grand total of $12,612.21 which the county has paid for the relief of the starving Armenians. Appleton's unpaid pledges amount to $1,010.15; Kaukauna $419.50.

The 1919 allotment paid through the War Chest was $12,106.00, which makes this year's quota $506.21 more than a year ago. The figures include all cash and pledges, whether paid to L. O. Wissman, county treasurer, or to the state and national headquarters.

Dr. Peabody announces that any pledge or cash to be contributed now should be sent to James W. Thompson, 213 Plankinton Arcade, Milwaukee.

SLIM SALLEE CHASED FOR DOCTORING BALL

VETERAN RED PITCHER AVERS "ANTI DOCTORING" RULE WILL END HIS CAREER AS PITCHER

(By Henry L. Farrell.) By United Press Leonard Wire New York—Dr. Slim Sallee has taken his shingle down for ten days.

Charged with malpractice in the treatment of the ball, the veteran southpaw of the Cincinnati Reds, was run out of his office on the mound yesterday by Umpire Harrison.

He is the first victim of the new pitching rules against which he has been the leading kicker.

For seven innings, Johnny Evers on the coaching line and the Giants in the dugout had been yelling:

"Make 'im keep his hand out of his pocket, umpire."

"Better clean out your own backyard first and get him to watch Tony," the bank Red retorted.

Harrison finally waved him out in the eighth inning with an automatic suspension of ten days.

Before the game yesterday, he told the writer that he could not pitch without using resin on his finger tips and that the new rule would end his baseball career.

Assassins a Vicious Tribe The Assassins, or Assassinians, a band of fanatical Mohammedans, came into Persia and settled there about 1090. They also possessed themselves of a large tract of land in Syria. They trained up the young to assassinate persons designated by their chief. From them came the word assassin. After making way with quite a number of rulers they were run out of Persia and Syria.

Elms No natural Gothic arch compares with that formed by two American elms, where their lofty jets of foliage shoot across each other's ascending curves, to intermingle their showery flakes of green. When one looks through a long double row of these, he beholds a temple not built with hands, fairer than any minster, with all its clustered stems and fluttering capitals, that ever grew in stone.—Holmes.

Nothing New Under Sun New York Tribune discovers that Burke used this expression: "I should say they did." In Charles Dickens' "Sketches by Boz," a street urchin shouts to one of two fighting women, "Put the kyebosh on her, Mary." There is nothing new, not even in slang expressions.—Florida Metropolis.

Accommodating Lightning Sometimes lightning performs rather comical freaks. It has been recorded that a certain mansion in Wales had been struck by lightning, which saved the servants the trouble of lighting a fire! The chimney was struck and the fuel laid in one of the grates was ignited.

SHOULD NOMINATE JOHNSON

Having surrendered to the anti-league of nations forces and submitted to their extreme and stultifying dictation in the adoption of a platform, there is only one consistent course for the Republican convention in the selection of a presidential candidate and that is to nominate Hiram Johnson. The Californian who, with the assistance of Borah and the Hearst newspapers, frightened the old guard into a repudiation of everything the Republican party has previously stood for with reference to peace, is clearly entitled to the nomination.

The supreme issue of this campaign is the Versailles treaty and the league of nations. All domestic questions are of minor importance and will be so regarded by the nation. The plank in the Republican platform on this subject represents the attitude of the so-called "irreconcilables," the "bitterenders," the handful opposed to the negotiation of any strong treaty with Germany and equally opposed to association of nations for the preservation of peace.

Back of this contingent lies Pro-Germanism. Back of it lies Alienism. Back of it lies western Radicalism and Sectionalism. Mr. Johnson went into the convention with a little more than 100 votes. At no time did he stand the slightest chance to receive the nomination, and yet because he and his Pacific Coast fire-eaters threatened to bolt the party and repeat the performance of 1912 the convention managers meekly threw up their hands. It was one of the most striking exhibitions of political ferocity ever witnessed in the history of parties.

The peace plank stands for absolutely nothing. It repudiates the recorded actions of the Republican majority in the United States senate. It repudiates all the great constructive leadership there is in the party. It repudiates the views of nine out of ten of the puppet delegates who sat upon the convention floor and gave it their ratification. It reflects nothing except the venom and prejudice and radicalism of a small band of extremists—an unimportant minority—and what is equally disgraceful, it means nothing.

A convention which is so utterly lost to moral sense and responsibility as to forever compromise itself on one of the greatest issues which has ever confronted the nation ought to complete its work by nominating for president the man whose highwayman leadership is followed. Johnson is that man. But the convention dares not do it. It dares not do anything which is honest and straightforward. For that reason it will throw Johnson overboard on the theory that it has saved to the party the vote of the anti-treaty element, and must now make an appeal to real American citizenship by naming a candidate whose name at least will inspire a degree of confidence.

The platform as a whole is the product of irrevolution and cheap politics. It takes a definite position on little or nothing. It is filled with platitudes of the old shelf-worn variety. It favors a "firm and effective" policy toward Mexico. Can anyone translate that? It applauds the record of the Republican congress, which is worse than a blank. It damns the Democratic party for all the country's ills and points to itself as the redeemer of mankind. It makes a joke of the high cost of living and urges woman's suffrage while blocking its realization. It is precisely the kind of declaration of principals that a convention without any principals might enunciate. It is stamped all over with fear and hesitation and indecision. There is not one thing about it which commends itself to courageous, painstaking, honest minded men. Evolved as the basis of surrender to the minority it could not well be of any other character.

The platform is a severe disappointment to those who had hoped and expected ed to see the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt range itself clearly and aggressively on the side of world progress, of international justice, of the cause of christian civilization involved in the great issue of peace. There is not the slightest question but what the party has suffered tremendously in the eyes of the people by its compromising and humiliating course at Chicago. There is not the slightest doubt but what it has made a grave mistake. It has opened the way to a contest for the presidency which, had it done the statesmanly and big thing at Chicago would have easily insured to the country a Republican president and a Republican administration, worthy the best and highest traditions of the party.

UNEQUAL REPRESENTATION IN THE G. O. P.

Do the delegates to the national Republican convention represent the party or merely the states of the union.

On a basis of the vote cast at the last presidential election the apportionment of delegates is manifestly unfair. Every now and then the national committee talks this situation over, but no decision is reached. It should have the courage to take up the question and settle it.

E. H. R. Green, of Texas, when asked by the senate committee whom the delegation he represented would support at the national convention said:

"They are a little for everybody. We have so many prospective postmasters that we are for any man who can get nominated. If you tell us who that will be we could settle all doubts. The pressure for office is great and we've got more candidates for office than Republican voters."

Being a Republican where Republicans are a scarce article pays but the Republican party has something to do besides find jobs for such fellows. Texas has 23 delegates. Texas cast 64,999 votes for Hughes in 1916. Wisconsin has 26 delegates. Wisconsin cast 221,323 votes for Hughes. This state has three and one-half times as many Republican voters as Texas but the number of delegates is practically the same.

Oregon, which cast 126,813 Republican votes in 1916 has only ten delegates. Washington with 167,244 Republican votes has but fourteen delegates. The combined number of delegates of these northwestern states is but one more than Texas has and yet the voting power of the two states is several times greater than Texas'.

It is manifestly unfair that South Carolina, with 1,558 Republican votes, should have eleven delegates, and Oregon, with 126,813 votes, should have only ten seats in the convention. The same misrepresentation is found throughout the south. The party is not represented because there is little of it there. The states, however, are represented and principally by men of the type referred to by Mr. Green—they are candidates for federal patronage. These southern delegates are so numerous that they control the balance of power and the convention's action is, to a great extent, in their hands—or the hands of the politicians who can manipulate them.

AN INDIRECT EFFECT

Ultimate results are sometimes more disastrous than immediate results. As one effect of the recent "outlaw" strike of the railroad switchmen a seed grower reports that for several weeks $60,000 worth of seed potatoes has been lost somewhere between his shipping point and the purchasers. Even if they are delivered soon it will be too late to plant potatoes this year.

The valuation given indicates that about 20,000 bushels are lost, the sales probably having been made before the jump that took potatoes to $5. As six bushels of potatoes are needed to plant an acre, their loss means a reduction of potato land of 3,333 acres. Assuming that farmers who ordered first-class seed of a professional grower have good land, well prepared, there would have been grown from the lost potatoes about 150 bushels per acre, or approximately 500,000 bushels.

The country is likely to be short not only this half million bushels of potatoes but a great deal more because of seed and fertilizers lost by other shippers in a similar way, following the strike and freight blockade.

Unearned Ailment

A great part of popular "indigestion" and "liver complaint" is nothing but rebellion of the alimentary tube to the swinish habit of gourmandizing. The remarkable part of it is that the digestive apparatus of civilized man is that of a wild beast. That nine out of ten victims of so-called "indigestion" owe their trouble to eating food which is really bad, primarily to eating like hogs is self-evident in the fact that surfeits so commonly follows a brief course of dieting. Dieting almost invariably means eating much less than usual.

It is indeed difficult for those of us who are frequently or habitually exposed to luxury—and few of us are not so exposed these days—to avoid playing the hog with our ailments, even though we earnestly wish to be temperate, for one who refuses to eat anything and everything on any and all occasions runs the risk of being deemed an unsocial animal, and man prides himself, at least civilized man does, on being that kind of animal.

If one desires, for the sake of health, comfort, good appearance, efficiency and long life, to skip, say, breakfast, or lunch every day, or even a season, one's family and friends are bound to become alarmed. One comes down with something serious. The idea that on "the eat" depend physical health and vitality is so thoroughly ingrained in popular belief that he who dares to skip a meal is pretty sure to be commended to sophisticated bunkerie or whatever the latest tonic may be called.

Muscular work uses up a considerable amount of energy; much fuel is burned, and therefore much fuel must be supplied the body to maintain balanced health, which is to say a normal metabolism and a normal weight. Mental work, even of the most intensely concentrated order, uses up very little energy, contrary to a favorite delusion of the Tired Business Man, and therefore the sedentary worker or brain worker requires little fuel or food to maintain health. But it is a common habit for those who earn their living with their wits to eat as heartily or even more heartily than those who earn their living by the sweat of their brows. For the result of this popular gluttony is shown by the Mortality Statistics of the Census Reports. You will find that middle age degenerations, grouped as cardiovascular disease, and commonly called arteriosclerosis, heart disease, apoplexy, Bright's disease, now rival, if they do not exceed in popularity the long time Marshall of the Men of Death—tuberculosis—as a mode of shuffling off this mortal coil.

If we were anywhere nearly so fearful of exposure to luxury as we are of exposure to the weather a majority of us would earn something better than a grade of C in efficiency, good looks and morals.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Maybe It Is Hereditary

Inquiry sent ten days ago—concerning little boy—mentally weak—forgot to inclose stamped addressed envelope. Please find same inclosed, for reply. (M. M. A.)

ANSWER—This time you forgot the stamp. Also I forgot just about ten days ago what your previous communication was about, so you must repeat the whole thing. I keep no files or memoranda of letters from readers.

Sulphur and Molasses

Would it be advisable in your judgment, to take sulphur and molasses as a spring tonic to clear the blood? (S. K.)

ANSWER—Sulphur and molasses is a physic, or are a physic, I dunno which. In ye old times, before we had the water works put in, people waited till spring, then took sulphur and molasses. They tried to camouflage this practice by imagining that it "cleared the blood," but in reality all it cleared was the intestine.

Fine for the Liver

Some time ago I read that dandelion greens, boiled, are good for a bad liver. If this is true kindly tell me the amount to be taken at each dose. (P. S. S.)

ANSWER—They're as good for the liver as for any other part of the body, and no worse. Take a good three-leaf forkful, or a couple forkfuls, at a feed, but be sure they are very thoroughly boiled. Dandelion greens, like other leafy vegetables and relishes, contain vitamins, laxative, and contain a bitter principle (taraxacin) which whets appetite. Their effect on the liver, good or bad, is imaginary.

Miss Katherine Barker entertained several young ladies in honor of her guest, Miss Nellie Cole of Rhinelander.

Among the paper trade visitors during the week were J. H. McCormick of New York, George Plamondon of Chicago, Editor L. D. Post of the Paper Mill of New York, C. F. Trowbridge of Hamilton, Ohio, and W. Lesser of Albany, New York.

The first annual tournament of the M. R. Frei Gun club was to be held July 4 on the club grounds near Appleton Junction. The shooting was to be at animate and inanimate targets.

The graduating class of Lawrence university had secured the Imperial Male quartet of Chicago for a concert at the Methodist church the following Thursday evening.

The case against a Neenah young man charged with accosting and insulting girls on the street was dismissed on account of the timidity of the girls to appear in court.

The number of visitors attending the saengerfest was estimated at 2,000. Ten thousand visitors were expected the day following as special trains were to be run from all the neighboring cities.

Commencement week program of Lawrence university opened with the Sub-Freshman exhibition in college chapel. The annual commencement love feast, the annual sermon before the religious societies, which was to be delivered by the Rev. J. W. McKay, and the baccalaureate sermon by Dr. Samuel Plantz were scheduled for the following day.

'STAGE MONEY' HE GAVE AWAY WAS REAL THING

St. Louis.—John Henry lost $180. His fellow roomer, Edward Bennett, found the roll of bills. "They can't fool me," he whooped, "it's stage money." Then he gave it away. "Buy yourself a suit of clothes," Bill," he joked and peeled off a fifty-dollar note. By and by a cop came around and broke the news to Eddie. Now he's trying to collect the "stage" money from his friends.

THE BOOK OF ANN

Daddy Breaks Up the Attentions of Claude Ives on Ann

I returned home, and to the perusal of the latest book about the chemistry of food. It was a welcome relief from "auras" and eroticism. Then I went over my housekeeping accounts. I hadn't been paying any grocery or meat bills while we lived in daddy's house, and the new high prices of foodstuffs appalled me. The size of my checking account had nothing whatever to do with my willingness to face the present price of sugar. I was glad I didn't have a regular maid. I, at least, would be very careful of what was thrown into the garbage pail.

I planned a lovely one-dish dinner for Bob, one of those casserole compounds which are so delicious, which seem so simple, but which cost the cook so much work. However, it was work I could get out of the way long before dinner. It wouldn't take my time after my husband came home. That was a detail I had to look out for. As long as Bob never saw me working around the house, he wouldn't insist on finding a maid. If my work interfered with our time together at home, I would have to go over the servant girl problem with him again.

As I sang at my kitchen table, I noticed that the furniture which I've had promised was being carried into Ann's bungalow, the other side of my lilac hedge. Last to go in was a magnificent player-piano. It was daddy's choicest gift to the new home.

Daddy is very fond of music and he knows a perfect instrument when he hears one. Naturally, he wanted to test Ann's player-piano as soon as possible. He stopped at my door in the middle of the afternoon and invited me to go with him to Ann's house.

The workmen had gone, it was late in the day, but Ann was still there, he said.

Ann was there, all right. Our ears informed us as we approached her house by the side door. The player-piano was rolling off the awfullest jazz dance ever devised to torture the human ear, or set human feet to prancing.

Daddy laughed as I one-stepped up the walk. The side door was wide open, and the racket made by the jazz music covered the sound of our shoes on the gravel.

We paused at the door, then stood still as if paralyzed.

Ann Lorimer and Claude Ives were circling madly around the room in a dance posture which would have been censored out of the movies.

Daddy muttered something under his breath and started forward, not realizing, I supposed, that he was carrying his cane uplifted at a threatening angle. I put a restraining finger on his arm.

"Wait, daddy!" I whispered, knowing well what a frightful fit of temper Daddy Lorimer can develop in half a second. "Wait a minute. He's so tall, you know—and she's so little!"

Daddy waited with his lips compressed to keep back the expletives.

Shortly the jazz stopped with a bang, and the dancers whirled to a couch and dropped upon it. We could see the tops of their heads above the high back of the divan. And those two heads were so close together that the shoulders below them must have touched. Evidently Claude Ives had forgotten to withdraw his arms from the slender figure of Mrs. Jim Lorimer!

In marched Daddy and down came his cane with a resounding thump.

Up jumped Ives so suddenly that he made me think of a jack-in-the-box. And up jumped that pretty little fool Ann.

Daddy addressed her first: "Young lady!" he said sternly. "You go straight home to mother!"

"Mr. Lorimer! Mr. Lorimer!" fluttered Ives. "You don't understand You don't—"

"I guess I can understand what I see with my own eyes," stormed daddy. "Make out your bill, sir. For everything—now—!" He pointed with his cane to a writing desk.

"But, Mr. Lorimer, the plan is not complete. The color scheme—"

"Make out that bill—and go!" thundered daddy. "I can finish her 'aura' for her! It's paid! Yours, sir is yellow!"

Democratic Convention Snap-Shots

The Story of 16 Nominations

By A. H. VANDENBERG

THE CONVENTION OF 1872

The Democratic National Convention of 1872, which assembled in Baltimore on July 9, was perhaps the most unique gathering of its sort in the whole story of the Democratic Party. Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, was nominated for President on a single ballot, in spite of the fact that for a quarter of a century or more he had been the Party's most vigorous and persistent critic and assailant.

This action resulted from a desire to unite with so-called "liberal Republicans" representing partisan factions which were dissatisfied with President Grant's first term for a variety of reasons. These "liberal Republicans," in previous convention at Cincinnati, nominated Greeley on the sixth ballot after a close contest between this sturdy old New York Journalist and Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts (who, if successful, would have been the third generation of his family to enter the White House.)

When the Democrats assembled in Baltimore, they had this Cincinnati action of the "liberal Republicans" for a guide post, and they followed it—from first to last—with fidelity. Thomas Jefferson Randolph of Virginia was temporary chairman. Senator James H. Doolittle of Wisconsin was permanent chairman. Greeley was nominated for President on a single ballot with 686 votes, his only contenders being Jeremiah S. Black of Pennsylvania with 21 votes, Thomas

F. Bayard of Delaware with 16 votes, and William S. Groesbeck of Ohio with 2 votes.

For Vice-President, B. Gratz Brown of Missouri (previously nominated by the "liberal Republicans") was similarly elevated on a single roll-call, with the only dissension centering around John W. Stephenson of Kentucky.

The Convention even took the Cincinnati platform, including a plank which straddled the tariff question and refused an endorsement of free trade. Its acceptance was strongly opposed by Senator Bayard of Delaware, but the vote in favor of it was 670 to 62.

The result of the Convention created general Democratic dissatisfaction, and an effort to nominate a "straight Democratic ticket" culminated at Louisville on September 3, 1872, in the nomination of Charles O'Connor of New York (previously nominated by the "Labor Reform Party") for President and John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts for Vice-President.

But this latter ticket was never registered in the electoral college at all. Grant was re-elected. Greeley died a few days after election and democratic electors scattered their vote without serious attempt at concentration. The leaders were Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana (42) and B. Gratz Brown of Missouri (18). Three Georgia electors tried still to vote for Greeley, but Congress rejected their ballots.

To be continued tomorrow with the story of the Convention of 1876

Had to Look the Part

A perpetually unshaven fellow who runs a newsstand near the winter garden was hailed into court the other day for some trivial charge. He pleaded his own case and was dismissed. The magistrate was interested in his excellent address and his knowledge of the law. He explained that he had been admitted to the bar and was a graduate of a big eastern college. "I could only make $1,000 a year with my law," he said, "and I make about $12,000 a year selling newspapers. It may surprise you to see how unimportant I am but it is business psychology. If I dressed in good clothes people would not purchase from me."—New York Times.

When Sugar Cost Real Money

Sugar once sold as high as $2.38 a pound, but this was in the earlier days of its production (from 1552 to 1600).

Have a Purpose, and Stick

You can't change jobs periodically and rise to the top. A vacillating purpose may keep a fellow pretty busy, but few real credits accrue for the effort. The facing about means retracing your steps. That means you are getting back to the point you started from. This may be necessary if you were once headed in the wrong direction. Then of course you must get back to start in right. But this double tracking requires lots of effort and you get nowhere. You can't afford much of it. At best life's battles are hard to fight and the road is largely uphill. The wise man is careful to make every step contribute to progress.—Exchange.

Courage

True courage is a spiritual victory and cannot be marked with a physical label. It is developed and strengthened as is everything, by exercise. Its index is not in squareness of chin, but in squareness of purpose; not in firmness of lips, but in fashioning the lips to speak the truth; not in depth of chest, but in depth of soul; not in confident tread, but in walking uprightly.—W. S. C.

Peruvian Rain Tree

It is estimated that one of the Peruvian rain trees will on the average yield nine gallons of water each day. In a field of an area of the kilometer square, that is 5,250 feet each way, can be grown 10,000 trees separated from each other by twenty-five meters. This plantation produces daily 295,000 liters of water.

Indian's Cradle.

The papoose cradle, or "Pa-bi-chi," is found in every Plate dwelling, and it is the masterpiece of the Indian mother's achievements. Cradle and carriage in one, it holds the youthful scion lashed and shawl-bound and safe and content.

Close Association.

"The prima donna has decided to divorce her latest husband."

"On what grounds?"

"She says he insists on sitting in the same box every night when she sings. As a result they have been thrown together so much that he has gotten on her nerves."

GRADED ROADS JUST AS GOOD AS CONCRETE

AUTOMOBILISTS ARE BEGINNING TO PREFER GRAVEL HIGHWAYS TO CONGESTED CONCRETE ROADS

The value of graded highways as compared to the ordinary dirt road of the country has been demonstrated during the last few days. The one and a half inch rainfall of the last 24 hours had made many of the concrete roads impassable, while the graded highways are still in the best of condition. Motorists are especially enthusiastic about the roads that are patrolled by the highway commission this year. The daily care that is exercised makes them almost preferable to pavements for comfortable driving. Concrete highways draw such a large traffic afternoons and Sundays that the constant tension while passing cars takes away the pleasure of motoring. Those who want to get the most out of their trips take the gravelled roads where traffic is less frequent and make a delightful outing out of their ride.

SLEUTHS BESIEGE CARUSO'S ESTATE

COURT IS MOVED TO HOME OF NOTED TENOR IN EFFORT TO LOCATE JEWELRY THIEVES

Easthampton, L. I.—Judge Hiram Shell and the Easthampton court moved out to Enrico Caruso's summer castle Friday morning and there held an inquisition of the Italian tenor's eleven servants in the hope of learning who stole Mrs. Caruso's automatic jewel chest and its contents, valued at $40,000, Tuesday night. Maids, cooks, gardeners, butlers and chauffeurs—all are as prisoners in this fascinating white jewel of a house, set in a lawn of emerald, for they are not permitted to leave the Caruso premises until District Attorney Leroy Young has had a chance to question them regarding the incidents of Tuesday night. See "Inside Job"

The frequent reiteration by the score or more of sage detectives scouring the grounds of their suspicion that the robbery was an "inside" job, has caused some uneasiness in the ranks of the servants and it was thought that Young, in forbidding them to go off the spacious grounds, hoped the guilty one would betray himself by attempting to defy the order.

Twenty more solid and husky plain clothesmen came out from New York on Friday, joining the battalion of searchers already tramping the lawn and cracking through the forest in search of the performing jewel box. Twelve of the newcomers were set to raking a large clump of woods known as the briar patch. Thomas W. Young, an electrician who once won some wiring in the house, has given interesting information as to the value of the elaborate alarm contained in the jewel box. Young said he saw the butler and two maids in Mrs. Caruso's boudoir playing with the complicated machinery of the box, ringing the gong and shutting it off. They were taking turns playing with the bell, Young said.

SEEK WOMAN FOR DEATH OF NOTED WHIST PLAYER

New York.—Police were unsuccessful early today in their efforts to locate three women who were said to have keys to the apartment of Joseph Elwell, international authority on whist and noted turfman who was murdered in his apartment here. Authorities were convinced that there was "a woman in the case." Edward Rhodes, chauffeur for Elwell, informed them of the three women who had access to the apartment. Rhodes' statements led police to give credence to a theory that one of the women may have been married and her husband obtained possession of the key, after learning of her friendship with Elwell.

BADGER DELEGATES HISSED WHEN THEY CAST THEIR BALLOTS

BALLARD TAKES PART IN HEATED DISCUSSION FOLLOWING BREAK TO JOHNSON'S SIDE

Chicago.—La Follette's delegates were hissed again in the republican convention on Friday, this time because they voted for La Follette for president. The protest started in the galleries and extended to some of the delegates after Wisconsin's first vote, growing in volume on the succeeding three ballots. La Follette seems to be considered an outcast at this convention. The twenty-four pledged Badger delegates, supposed to be under the thumb of Alfred T. Rogers, national committeeman, voted as a unit for the senator on the first three roll calls, but two of them jumped the traces on the fourth ballot and went over to Senator Hiram Johnson. Charles Graham, Ripon, and John Hatz, Bangor, are said to be the two bolters.

The factional break was of more concern to La Follette leaders Friday night than the hissing. Would Head Off Break An executive caucus was held at the Atlantic hotel to get the wandering delegates back in line if possible, and to head off more of them disobeying instructions. Herbert Hoover and Gen. Leonard Wood each received a vote from Wisconsin on all four ballots, Henry Lockney supporting Hoover and John M. Whitehead going to Wood.

No Part in Events La Follette delegates played no part in the stirring events of Friday up to the time they were hissed.

When Wisconsin was reached on the first roll call John J. Blaine, chairman of the delegation, announced the vote as follows:

"One for Hoover, one for Wood and twenty-four for Robert M. La Follette." In a flash the gallery over the stage started hissing, but the demonstration of protest subsided as the clerk hurried on with the roll call. After the second, third and fourth ballots the protest gained in volume and became general in the galleries, some delegates also taking part in it. This outburst was in line with the treatment E. J. Gross received on the previous day and indicates that there would have been a much more serious outburst had La Follette's name been presented in a nominating speech.

Heated Exchange of Words The loss of two votes for La Follette on the fourth ballot and a gain of two votes for Johnson in the Wisconsin delegation resulted in a heated exchange of words among the Badger delegates on the floor of the convention. C. B. Ballard registered a vigorous protest, and charged that the two men who bolted had broken faith with La Follette. He said he was willing to support the senator to the finish.

Someone in the delegation took Ballard to task for kicking so hard, saying that Johnson was a progressive, to which Ballard replied: "He isn't a La Follette progressive." There were rumors at the Atlantic hotel Friday night that at least one more La Follette henchman was ready to go to Johnson. Some of the others are said to be growing restless and eager to make their votes count. This breaking up of the La Follette machine worried the senator's lieutenants, and they were busy Friday night trying to restore order in their ranks.

NATURAL GAS SUPPLY OF U. S. DWINDLING

U. S. EXPERT AVERS PRODUCTION OF GAS IS ACCOMPANIED BY INCREDIBLE WASTE

Washington, D. C.—Not only is the oil situation a matter of serious concern, but the supply of natural gas is also dwindling in an alarming manner. This was stated today by Dr. Frederick G. Cottrell, director of the bureau of mines, in an address at a conference on natural gas conservation called by Secretary of the Interior Payne, and attended by representatives of a number of states which are vitally interested in the question. Dr. Cottrell declared the production of gas in the past has been accompanied by "incredible waste and folly." He said the exhaustion of the supply would be a calamity. Supply is Limited "Natural gas is one of the wasting assets, along with coal, oil and other mineral deposits, which are not being replaced. In distinction between productions from the farmers, which grow from year to year," said Dr. Cottrell, "natural gas fields can be exhausted very rapidly. In the United States, there is field after field, and well after well, from which all commercial gas has been extracted and wells abandoned. "It has taken years for the gas producers and the public to learn that there was not an unlimited supply of gas, but that, on the other hand, the supply was limited. "There is every reason to believe that of all the natural resources of the United States natural gas will be soonest exhausted. It would take less than 35,000,000 tons of coal to replace the amount of gas used in 1918."

The conference was called to consider recommendations relative to natural gas conservation prepared by a committee composed of representatives of gas companies, municipalities and public service commissions, which was appointed several months ago by former Secretary of the Interior Lane. Miss Rhea Williams of Oberlin, O., is the guest of Miss Ethel Sherman, 510 Harris street.

WOMEN TACKLE THE HOUSING PROBLEM

Miss Jean Hamilton (above) and Mrs. Bernard Pollak.

New York—Solution of the working girl's housing problem is being attempted by the National League of Women Workers, of which Mrs. Bernard Pollak is secretary. Attempts of big companies to provide homes for girls in the past have sometimes failed, the league believes, because the women have been placed under restrictions. The league is now working with the Eaton, Crane & Pike Co., at Pittsfield, Mass., and will have a modern home for girls. The cooperative company owning the house will treat the girls as ordinary tenants. Each will have her own latch key and will be under no supervision whatever. The league will hold a convention at Bryn-Mawr College in June.

LOST ENGINES ARE FOUND IN MISSOURI

Fred Morris, secretary of Appleton Water commission, was notified this morning by W. B. Basing, station agent of the Northwestern Railway company, that the three cylinders of the Diesel engines which the commission sent to St. Louis on April 9 and which were lost while enroute, were located in the Missouri Pacific yards in St. Louis. The delay was caused by the war bill having been lost. The three cylinders which weigh over seven hundred pounds were sent to the manufacturers at St. Louis to be rebored. As soon as the work is completed they will be returned to the local plant and will be accompanied by a workman to prevent them from again being lost.

FIND CLUE TO KIDNAPPED BABY IN CLEVELAND

By United Press Leased Wire
Cleveland.—Mrs. Della K. Lingel, rooming house proprietress here, today notified the police that a child answering the description of Blakely Coughlin, 13-months-old baby kidnapped from Norristown, Pa., ten days ago, was brought to her home by a man late Thursday. She said she could not room them and they departed.

Desired Result Achieved

Hazel had disobeyed her mother, who had chided her for it, without any apparent effect. The fact that she had done wrong worked upon the girl's conscience, evidently, for she went up to her mother and said humbly: "Please don't scold any longer, mamma, 'cause I feel bad enough about it now."

Knew Value of Contrast

For several evenings after school my small daughter persisted in coming home with an exceedingly unkempt-looking child. Upon asking her why she was possessed to go with such a dirty child she replied: "Oh, mother, I like to go with her 'cause it makes me look cleaner than I am."

It takes courage to do that which is unpopular, but which one feels is right. Courage is a great asset in citizenship because it enables us to do right for right's sake and not because it pleases some one else.

LODGE DIDN'T NEED GLASSES TO "READ" KEYNOTE SPEECH

Chicago. — Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is nearly 70 years old. Somebody who had noticed that the senator did not use eye glasses when he read his speech as temporary chairman of the convention mentioned the fact to him on Friday, the intimation being that it was remarkable that a man of Mr. Lodge's age had such clear eyesight. Senator Lodge laughed. "I didn't have to use them," he said. "I knew my speech." But the conversation developed that Senator Lodge did not use glasses for any purpose.

APPLETON AND OSKOSH FORMS WORK TOGETHER

The program committee of the civic forum met jointly yesterday with a committee of four Oshkosh forum committeemen headed by the Rev. Theodore Fayville, pastor of the First Congregational church.

It is proposed that a program be arranged by which Oshkosh will use the speakers Sunday afternoons and Appleton in the evening. This will save a lot of expense in bringing outside speakers here, as both will contribute toward the railroad fare. Although this may be carried out, no definite action was taken along that line.

It was decided to start the meetings early in November, and omitting two Sundays at Christmas time, continue until the opening of lent. Dr. H. E. Plantz, chairman of the Appleton program committee, was asked to look after the correspondence about the proposed plan.

Two feet is the usual stride of an ostrich, but when the bird is alarmed and begins to run it changes its mincing stride for 14-foot steps, which carry it over the ground at a rate of 25 miles an hour.

pressed by the length of the demonstrations for General Wood, Governor Lowden and other candidates, which went over the half hour period in the first two instances. "No human being could possibly get so enthusiastic for anybody or anything in this weather that he would cheer for twenty minutes spontaneously," said a politically hardened New York delegate. "Why, I wouldn't cheer twenty minutes for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment even if I knew I would get a stein of real beer at the end of the cheer."

DALE GRADUATION

The graded school at Dale held its graduating exercises last night. The program included a class play, valedictory and presentation of diplomas by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools. CLEANING WITH GASOLINE

Unless the whole garment is placed in gasoline, the small places will show rings when cleaned. This is caused by using too much gasoline on the grease spot. Brush lightly with a cloth dampened with the gasoline, brush when dry. If the rings are then noticeable hold the soiled part over the steam of a teakettle, and this will remove the unsightly blotch.

FINDS CARRIER PIGEON

Mrs. Hannah Meldam, town of Grand Chute, is in possession of a carrier pigeon that alighted at her home Sunday. The bird seemed very tame, and although it has been freed several times, stays away only for an hour or so and returns. The leg band is marked "1,056, A. J.—19 Y." Good wheat is about the only food the pigeon will eat. When rye is mixed in, it sorts out the wheat and lets the rye remain.

WILL MAKE REPORT ON FLOOD WATER DAMAGE

Oshkosh.—A meeting of the directors of the Association for Relief of High Water has been called for next Tuesday at the home of Alan H. Tripp, president of the organization, at Gills Landing. The purpose is to get data of all damage caused by high water on the Fox and Wolf rivers and their tributaries in order to turn this information over to the United States government. Plans for widening and deepening the Wolf river above Lake Poygan are being considered by the war department. It is believed this improvement will reclaim something like 20,000 acres of riparian land. Mr. Tripp says the members of the association are greatly pleased with the manner in which Col. Schultz, Milwaukee, war department head at that city, handled the flood water this year. The dams at Neenah and Menasha were not permitted to hold the water back, which gave the farmers additional land for cultivation and yet gave the water-power users, mostly paper mill men, plenty of water for power.

Australian engineers have invented three-rail switches for use by railroads where three rails are laid in each track to accommodate rolling stock of different gauges.

In Praise of Silence
Carlyle says, "Out of silence comes thy strength." We know it does. The finest, best thinking comes from quiet and silence. The greatest deeds are the result of thought. The best writings are done in the silence of the study. We look up into the sky on a starry night. There is a peace and silence from it that "passeth understanding." Silence is not loneliness; it is peopled with the best of all that there is in life to those who will understand.—Detroit News.

COBBAN WANTS TO BE SECRETARY OF STATE

MAN WHO ISSUES AUTOMOBILE LICENSES ASPIRES TO BE BOSS OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison—Alex J. Cobban, for fifteen years connected with the office of Secretary of State and one of the best known men at the State Capitol today announced his candidacy for secretary of State on the Republican ticket. Probably more automobile owners in Wisconsin know Mr. Cobban than any other man, for he is the man who has passed upon their license applications each year.

"I am a candidate for nomination for Secretary of State on the Republican ticket," said Mr. Cobban. "I have served as registration clerk, filing clerk, and at present I am Chief of the Auto Licensing Bureau. I have done much of the work of the office in respect to state aid to county and state fairs, and have had charge of a great deal of the work relating to elections. There is no part of the work of the office with which I am not familiar."

"The proper performance of the duties of Secretary of State is a man's job. I appreciate the importance of the office and have the assurance of my friends that I am qualified to perform its duties. I stand upon the record I have made in the office, and if elected shall serve the people in the same spirit that I have in the past."

Mr. Cobban, for a number of years before coming to Madison, was a timber estimator and resided at Eau Claire and later at Rhinelander. For two years he was in the sheriff's office at Rhinelander.

The proper performance of the duties of Secretary of State is a man's job. I appreciate the importance of the office and have the assurance of my friends that I am qualified to perform its duties. I stand upon the record I have made in the office, and if elected shall serve the people in the same spirit that I have in the past.

COLLEGE BUYS MORE PROPERTY ON AVENUE

STORE BUILDINGS AT CORNER OF COLLEGE AVENUE AND ONEIDA STREET CHANGES OWNERSHIP

Completion of a real estate deal early this week gives Lawrence college the entire frontage on College avenue from Union street to Park avenue, where Lawrence Memorial chapel stands. The last piece of property to be purchased was the lot 48 by 150 feet at the Union street corner, owned by Archie Shannon. Two store buildings occupied by the Peter Trass grocery stand on this site.

The Schiedermayer property immediately east of the chapel was purchased recently for $5,000. An old store building on this lot is to be sold at once and moved from the property. The land will then be converted into lawn. Nothing is to be done with the remaining buildings for some time to come, as Mr. Trass holds a lease which does not expire for several years.

The purchase was made with the idea of some day providing ample lawn space on the east side of the chapel, which will greatly enhance the appearance of the property. There was also a feeling that precaution ought to be taken to prevent the purchase of the property by anyone who would erect buildings inappropriate to the surroundings. The consideration in the Shannon purchase was not announced.

URGE VETERANS TO TAKE UP INSURANCE

LAPSED OR CANCELLED POLICIES MAY BE REINSTATED UP TO JULY 1 OF THIS YEAR

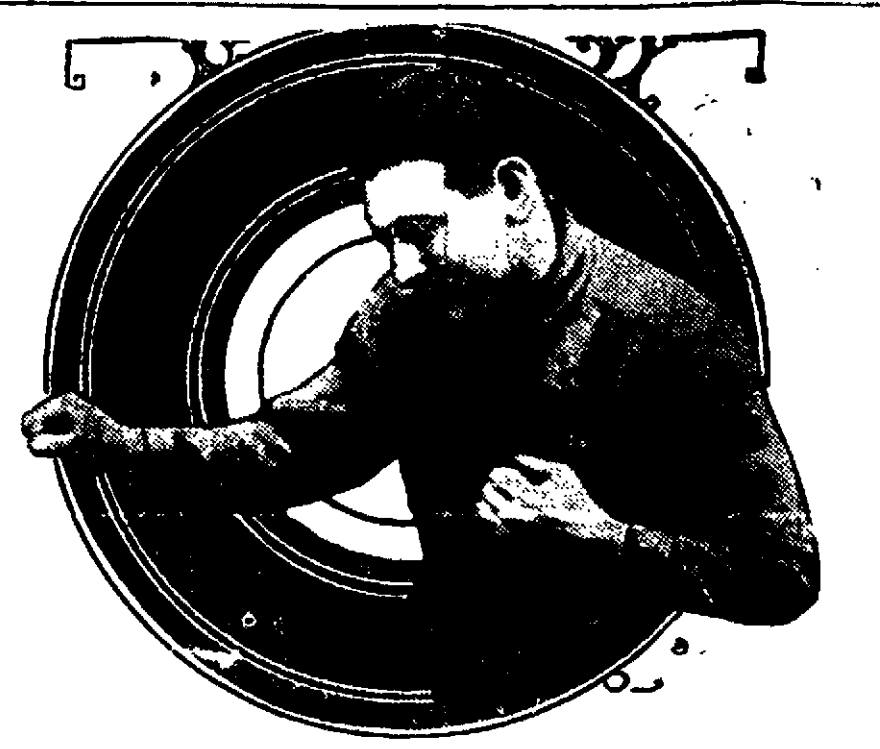

Ex-service men who allowed their war risk insurance to lapse are hurrying to get "back into the fold." A special ruling of the bureau made it possible for every soldier or sailor to reinstate before July 1, 1920, or 18 months from the date of discharge.

The Home Service office of the Red Cross is using its facilities to assist in this matter and is endeavoring to warn all ex-service men to act before the ruling is withdrawn. Under the various policies to which term insurance can be converted, there is the advantage of having a fixed premium. Premiums will be returned where it is found necessary to give up a policy of this kind.

Full information on rates, kinds of policies and the procedure necessary to reinstate or convert insurance is on file at the Home Service office and will be given to any interested persons who call.

Judge E. V. Werner has sent notice from Shawano that he will be here June 14 and 21 to take up court cases, and July 28 to take up jury cases.

THE SOUTHPAW WHO KNOCKED OFF MIKE O'DOWD'S CROWN

This is the new middleweight champion—Johnny Wilson of Charlestown, Mass. He got the referee's decision over O'Dowd after 12 rounds of milling at Boston. The referee was Hector McGinnis of Boston. Wilson thus jumped into fame overnight. The fans who read the news the day after the fight were dumfounded. O'Dowd, one of the fightingest champions of all champions, is mighty popular with the fans because he took on one and all. He has won with such regularity that no one questioned his supremacy. Thus when Wilson, classed as a second-rater, won the title, it brought quite a shock. Wilson is an Italian and his real name is John Francis Panica.

CITY FACES FAMINE IN FUEL BECAUSE OF SHORTAGE OF CARS

FUEL YARDS ARE EMPTY AND DEALERS HAVE NO ASSURANCES WHEN COAL WILL BE DELIVERED

If pessimism reigns anywhere these days, it is in the fuel and building material business. Every mail brings a flood of letters apologizing for non-deliveries of materials because the railroad companies are unable to furnish cars. Building and paving operations requiring concrete are at a standstill. There is also a possibility that autumn will come with the usual fuel stock lacking. Dealers are hopeful, however and use every possible influence to ship in enough material to keep some of the work going.

The shortage of cement has become so acute that nearly all building work is suspended. More than a million barrels of this commodity is stacked in the warehouses of the big companies awaiting shipment, but no cars are available.

"I believe there is hardly a barrel of cement in Appleton today," said John Tettlinger of the Ideal Lumber and Fuel company. "One big company in particular writes that it receives eight or ten empty cars a day where it ought to have 200 or more. We have several cars promised, but can't tell when we will get them. The cars are diverted to shipment of coal and other material."

Mr. Tettlinger stated that one large corporation needed cement so badly that arrangements were made to move it as far as Chicago by truck. It was then loaded aboard a boat and taken to Green Bay, transferred to a river steamer and brought here. It meant an additional shipping cost of $1.50 a barrel. Sand and stone cannot be moved at all because of lack of cars and some of the large quarries in this locality expect to shut down until relief is afforded.

Mr. Tettlinger also believes there will be a more pronounced fluctuation in lumber prices due to existing conditions. The timber workers' strikes, the car shortage and the possibility of higher freight rates are bound to make a difference which may be felt soon, he believes.

Conditions are none too encouraging in the coal situation. The wholesale price increased 10 cents a ton this month, but this has not been charged the consumer. Shipments are coming so slowly that a serious shortage may result when fall arrives. A few cars have been received in Appleton, but these are being used to fill orders placed early in the year. Mr. Tettlinger stated that his company had orders booked for about 2,000 tons now, with no assurance when delivery could be made. All orders are booked at a price to be fixed at the time delivery is made. Usually at this time of the year the dealers' yards are stocked with their entire supply of coke for the winter. This year there is none on hand and no definite assurance of delivery. One of the largest coke producers in the country writes that practically no coal can be secured from the mines with which to manufacture coke. They venture the assertion that they might make delivery in 30 or 60 days, which means that fall will arrive with no coke in the yards.

BRAVES FIND HAMILTON, BEATING PIRATES, 3-1

BOSTON—Boston made it three straight from Pittsburgh on Friday, getting to Hamilton in the eighth for three runs, all that were made in the game. Score: Pittsburgh 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-1; Boston 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 3-3.

CARDINALS BAT THREE PITCHERS HARD, WIN 10-2

BROOKLYN—The St. Louis Nationals batted three Brooklyn pitchers for 15 hits and a total of 21 runs on Friday, defeating the Dodgers, 10 to 2. Score: St. Louis 10 0 0 2 1 2 3 0-21; Brooklyn 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0-2.

Or Indian Origin
The powerful political organization "Tammany" was named after the Indian chief "Tamanand" of the Delaware tribe, who was famous for his virtues and wisdom. The Tammany society was founded in New York city May 12, 1782, and became identified with the Republican, now the Democratic party.

EXPECT DEMOCRATS TO HIT CLAIMS OF G. O. P. PLATFORM

SAN FRANCISCO CONVENTION PROBABLY WILL ASSAIL RECORD OF REPUBLICAN CONGRESS

By United Press Special Wire
Chicago.—Many of the most important planks of the republican platform today were expected to bring a direct challenge from the democrats in their convention at San Francisco.

The republican platform was adopted by the convention last evening.

Democrats are certain to meet with bitter denunciations of the claims of the republican platform that the last session of the national legislature has a praiseworthy record. They probably will point to several recommendations of the president that the congress failed to enact and seeked to place the blame for present conditions on this failure.

The hand of the old guard seemed apparent to some extent in the business and financial sections of the republican platform and the democrats probably will make an appeal to labor claiming the republicans are controlled by reactionary business interests.

Another democratic attack probably will be directed at the guaranty sections of the railroad act. A vigorous defense of the democratic conduct of financial affairs is expected to meet republican attacks on the direction of the federal reserve system. The high cost of living issue will be kicked back and forth in true political fashion, it now seems.

The league of nations issue is not very clearly defined in the republican platform and in this light much will depend on the character of the nominee, it was expected.

Prescribes Soupe Party

The doctors are prescribing some queer things for those who are unable to woo Morpheus, says the New York Sun. One doctor ordered a patient to take an all-night ride in a Pullman, while another prescribed a soupe party for his patient. The other day when a patient told his physician that he wakened up every morning at two and could not sleep after that hour, he was ordered to get an alarm clock. "Set the alarm for 15 minutes before two," advised the doctor. "As soon as it strikes, get up and take a walk. Do not go to bed again that day under any circumstances, nor take a nap. The next day set the alarm at a quarter past two. You will sleep until it wakens you. Get up as before and take another walk. The third night you can venture to set your alarm at three. Repeat the walk. If you are not cured by that time you will be a more different case than any I have had heretofore." The patient tried it, but the second night he was held up and the blow he got on the coco has helped him to catch up in his sleep.

Wolf Once a Monarch
The old folk tales are right—as they nearly always are if rightly read. Before firearms were well developed no lone man had any chance worth mentioning against the rush of a wolf pack. The gray prowlers were the terror of Europe, as the tiger still is the terror of India, and deservedly so. Children who gather to stare at a wolf in the zoo are gazing at a captive king.

Gingham Paper Dolls
There are some cut-out dolls of gingham and paper that children like. The bodies are traced on checked gingham, and the colored paper arms, legs and head are cut out and pasted on the bodies.

POINDEXTER FIRST TO WARN AMERICA AGAINST PEACE PACT

WASHINGTON SENATOR IS DESCRIBED AS MAN FIT TO LEAD NATION THROUGH DARK DAYS

By United Press Special Wire
Chicago.—The candidacy of Senator Miles Poindexter, of Washington, was placed before the republican convention Friday by George W. Walker, of Seattle, who portrayed him as the man who "first called upon his countrymen not to accept the covenant for a league of nations until they had read once more Washington's farewell address and the declaration of independence."

Walker said: "The ground where on we stand is hallowed ground. Sixty years ago the republican party met in national convention not far from this spot. It was at the cross-roads of destiny. In that hour, it called a man out of the west to lead its hosts to victory."

"This great state has a candidate strikingly possessed of the qualities of the great leader of years ago. He also is in his early fifties. A stalwart physically, we believe he has the mind and heart for which you search for, too, is the generous product of the frontier, of the free and open spaces of the expanding west."

"A lawyer by profession, and senator of the United States, he stands at the forefront in debate in that greatest of deliberative assemblies. He believes in popular sovereignty. He trusts the people. He is the first man in our history to announce directly to the people his ambition to serve them as president."

"Fear has never laid its palsying hand upon him. As well as any man in all this land, he knows that those who eat their bread in the sweat of their faces are as devoted and loyal and as true to the country as any within the republic."

"His capacity and genius for leadership appear through his public life. It was he who first called upon his countrymen not to accept the covenant of the league of nations until they had read once more Washington's farewell address and the declaration of independence. The American people paused and read. They have not yet accepted the covenant."

"This then is the manner of the man. At the zenith of his powers, simple in his tastes, approachable, direct, self-reliant, courageous, masterful, trained and experienced in public life one who has never known defeat, one upon whom the fates have bestowed the habit of success."

"For president of the United States, the state of Washington offers you and the nation the name of its junior United States senator, the Honorable Miles Poindexter."

The "Methusallers"
A nickname which came to the royal fusiliers during the war was the "Methusallers," and it apparently was given to them on account of the age of some of their first-joined recruits says an English writer. Splendid fellows, these were, but not all of them could get by the doctor without a slight mis-statement of age. These gallant old fellows went to France and other theaters of war and did well until either a bullet or disease knocked them out. Many of them were able truthfully to boast that they could "stick it" as well as any youngster.

PEOPLE CALLING FOR HOOVER, G. O. P. CONVENTION TOLD

JUDGE NATHAN L. MILLER OF NEW YORK PRAISES FORMER FOOD CONTROLLER IN ADDRESS

By United Press Special Wire
Columbus, Ohio.—The people are calling Herbert Hoover to the office of president, Judge Nathan L. Miller, of New York, declared Friday in putting him in nomination at the republican convention.

Miller defended Hoover against charges that he had spent too much time in foreign lands, that his republicanisms was not stalwart. He reviewed Hoover's work, showing his administrative ability as head of the Belgian relief commission and as food controller in the United States.

"I base the case for my candidate upon a record of achievement known to you, known to the people of this country, known to the world a record which grows the more it is more studied; a record which demonstrates beyond cavil or dispute the possession by its author of those high qualities, of those essential qualities which the present emergency demands, which the people of this country demand of the next president of the United States."

"I urge the nomination of the candidate for whom I shall vote because I am convinced that he stands preeminently in this country today as the man properly equipped and peculiarly fitted to deal with the problems confronting us."

"I take it the first duty of the incoming administration will be to establish peace. As a member of the supreme economic council, it was his duty to advise the president at the peace conference. As strongly as words could put it, he advised against our becoming involved in European intrigue, European disputes, in purely European affairs. He advised against assuming responsibility which might entail the cost and risk of military enforcement. He pointed out that to allow ourselves to become thus involved was contrary to the traditions, the desires and the sentiments of the American people. With clear vision and prophetic insight he pointed out loss of prestige and credit."

"Had his advice been heeded, we should not now be drifting in a sea of uncertainty while the forces of chaos and disorder menace the world. We can not isolate ourselves. If we would, and it is time that this country had a foreign policy which will protect and safeguard American interests. I am in a position to know that my candidate realizes as well as any man in this country what Great Britain is now doing to extend her own commerce at our expense. My candidate will know how to protect American interests and to maintain American rights, and he will have the courage and the ability and the disposition to do that, without inviting or provoking conflict. And I say to you, and I say to the country that he will not, if elected president, allow the foreign policy of this country to be controlled or influenced in the slightest degree for the purpose of seducing the votes of any element or group of the electorate whatsoever. He will be for America, all of America, all the time."

"It has been said that he has spent too many years of his life abroad without impairing his Americanism but profit to his country which no one would dare to measure. I nominate Herbert Hoover as our candidate for the great office of president of the United States."
